MONTH'S TRIAL FREE.

Breathe Hyomei three or four times daily and be cured of catarrh.

G. L. Penny, one of the most reliable business firms in Stanford, has seen many instances of the remarkable power of Hyomei to cure catarrhal troubles and other disorders of the respiratory organs.

Results in this treatment have given him so much confidence in Hyomei that he will give a month's trial with the positive understanding that if at the end of that time a cure is not effected or enough relief gained to warrant a continued use of the treatment for a while longer, the money will be refunded.

Hyomei is the only treatment for catarrh that has ever been sold under a "no cure, no pay" plan, and the only one where a month's trial treatment is free unless it cures.

Hyomei is not a pill or liquid. Just breathe it through the neat inhaler that comes with every outfit, and benefit will be seen from the first day's use. Breathe in this way, the health giving Hyomei penetrates to the minutest air cells of the lungs, and drives catarrhal germs and poisons from the system.

The complete outfit costs but $1, and extra bottles of Hyomei may be obtained for 50c.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure after a month's trial, Mr. Penny will refund your money and the treatment will be absolutely free.

Reminiscences of Logan's Fort.

(U. D. C. Edition Danville News)

In the commemoration of our great "Lost Cause," we shift not only to the Civil War, but are led further by the romantic interest which attaches to leaders and leaderships of daring attempts.

Within the city limits of pioneer Stanford, there is a spot, near the famous Buffalo Springs, which is eagerly shown to antiquarians by inhabitants who are proud of their historic fatherland. It is the location of the stockade erected by Col. Benjamin Logan and his brave little Sullote band, who came from Virginia to settle the dark and bloody ground. There were at that time only two other settlements in Kentucky—Harrodstown and Boonesborough—and it is therefore obvious why Boone and Harrod hailed Col. Logan's coming with joy. Henceforth, he was to be the precursor of civilization in Kentucky, since it was he who took command of the frontier post, which led to the opening of the Wilderness Road to Cumberland Gap. No sooner was the fort finished, than hundreds of savages in full war paint, were subjecting the heroic garrison to the horrors of siege after siege. It is in this time, and the formative period of government which followed immediately afterward that our interest is centered; for in the first, his courage and fortitude are brilliantly displayed, and in the second, his political power and whims. In May, 1777, a body of 100 Indians suddenly appeared before the stockade, forced the garrison to retire within, killing one man and wounding two; there were but 35 in all in the fort, 15 of whom were fighting men, now reduced to 12. One of the wounded lay helpless between the fort and the Indians, while his appeals for help were answered only by the frantic cries of the wife within. The heroic Logan, moved with sympathy and daring, rushed into what seemed the jaws of death, lifted the wounded man in his Herculean arms, and amid a shower of bullets from the foe, bore him safely to his distressed wife. This is only one of many instances of Logan's bravery. The powder and ball of the little garrison were nearly exhausted; it had to be replenished or all was lost. There was some nearer than the Holston Settlements, more than 100 miles; but Logan, with two picked men, set out over the mountains, forests, and untracked crags to secure the needed relief, leaving but nine guns to defend the women and children.

His resolute will made the trip successful and the crisis was past; the long siege of weeks was ended by the sudden appearance of Col. Bowman, of Virginia, at the head of 100 men. This was the last siege that Logan's Fort had to endure, and Col. Logan thus passed from military life to the civil. From this time on, he, like all heroes of the Revolution, became one of our statesmen. Up to his last days, he controlled the legislation of Lincoln county, both in local affairs and at the State Capital. It is a saying in this vicinity among old timers who delight in folk lore, that Col. Logan was a power "amongst the boys." An amusing anecdote is told of the old soldier which involves Stanford and Danville. These two towns were once contestants for the county seat of Lincoln, and that Danville was defeated is attributed to a mere accident. It is handed down by these same old timers that Col. Logan, who was considered a patriarch in this part of the State, was wont to visit and be received cordially in neighboring towns, out of his convivial habits and fondness for mist jilts. At the very season, when the contest for the county seat was at its height, he chanced to be in Danville. The old pioneer had become a little tipsy, and a party of young men played a practical joke upon him, by cutting the underides of his stirrup straps. The crowd which had assembled near the old tavern, were anxiously waiting for the Colonel to mount. Of course his mounting resulted in a sudden dismounting and a dusty back; he rose, like the fabulous phoenix and mounted his horse, he shouted to the jeering crowd, "Danville will never be the county seat of Lincoln."

Having influence in the Legislature, he succeeded in defeating the purpose of Danville to remove the county seat from Stanford. This little incident as ludicrous as it seems, was a strong factor in shaping the future of Danville and is a fair illustration of how the most insignificant event may lead to a great result. MRS. M. C. SAMPLEY.

Best Cough Medicine for Children.

When you buy a cough medicine for small children you want one in which you can place implicit confidence. You want one that not only relieves but cures. You want one that is unquestionably harmless. You want one that is pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets all of these conditions. There is nothing so good for the coughs and colds incident to childhood. It is also a certain preventive and cure for croup, and there is no danger whatever from whooping cough when it is given. It has been used in many epidemics of that disease with perfect success. For sale by W. N. Craig.

Central Kentucky Medical Association.

The Quarterly meeting of this ancient and honorable medical society was convened in Walton's Opera House on Thursday, the 21st at 11 o'clock A. M. with the president, Dr. Caldwell, of Perryville, in the chair. We say "ancient and honorable" order, why? The association was organized at Danville in the office of Dr. John D. Jackson, on March 24th, 1871, with delegates from the counties of Mercer, Boyle and Lincoln. At a subsequent meeting Garrard county was added to the list. The charter members were Wm. Powling, the first presiding officer; W. B. Harlan, H. Brown, S. P. Craig, George T. Irwin, John D. Jackson, N. D. Price, A. R. McKee, R. W. Dunlap, D. C. Tucker, J. M. Meyer, Thos. Kyle, M. L. Foreythe, J. T. Bobon and Heery Plummer. Of this number but three or four now remain to tell the tale, the others having gone over the "great divide" to rest under the shade of the trees. With its life of 33 years the association has embraced in its membership many men of eminence. The "district society," as it is commonly called, has furnished professors in many medical colleges and about a half dozen presidents to the parent society, The Kentucky State Medical Association, and more than one has aspired to position in the Federal government. As a medical organization it has done well, fulfilling its purpose admirably, that of extension of medical knowledge and the advancement of medical science; the promotion of friendly intercourse among physicians and the upbuilding of the interests, honor and efficiency of the medical profession.

The scientific program on this occasion was as follows: First paper for discussion, "Latest Therapeutics of Pneumonia," by Dr. Steele Bailey, of Stanford, furnished ammunition for a lively skirmish, every member detailing his plan for the alleviation and cure of this too prevalent malady, which is believed to be the worst that now affects mankind. Next was the report of the section on Obstetrics and Gynecology by J. G. Carpenter, of Stanford. This was an excellent resume of the subject, the author detailing his own experiences and giving the opinions of the latest and best authorities, also. Next on the program was an essay entitled, "Quia Custodiet Custodes?" by George Cowan, of Danville. Then Dr. Cook, of Stanford, read an interesting voluntary entitled "Four Cases of Streptococcus Infection in one Family." This was a unique experience and brought commendations from the members for the successful manner of the treatment employed. Dr. F. B. Montgomery, of Danville, read a valuable paper on the different diagnoses between Rheumatism and Rubella, detailing cases of each affection which had come up in his practice during the past winter and spring. This subject brought every fellow upon his pedestal digits. A vote of thanks was given to W. P. Walton, of the Lexington Democrat, for the use of the Opera House.

After a most enjoyable day, the Association adjourned to meet at Crab Orchard Springs the 3rd Thursday in July, at which time Dr. Harville, of Danville, will open the discussion on "Enterocolitis," and the report on the section of "Materia Medica and Therapeutics" will be made by Dr. Gose, of Danville.

An evening session of the Protective League Association was held in the office of Dr. Carpenter. The members of this body are also members of the C. K. M. A. Papers were read by Caldwell and others on "The Material Interests." At 10 o'clock P. M. the "League" adjourned to the cafe, where they fed abundantly and even the thirsty were not exiled. Many nice little sentiments were expressed during the evening. The ladies, who were present, coming in for the best tidbits. Such is the barest outline of the exercises of this reunion, the most noteworthy, possibly, in the annals of the fraternity. B.

Taking Desperate Chances.

It is true that many contract colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others to take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding cold and paves the way for more serious diseases. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of colds, can be had for a trifle? For sale by W. N. Craig.

C. V. Taylor, president of the Morristown, Tenn., National Bank, committed suicide at Hot Springs, Ark., by shooting himself through the breast. He lived long enough after the fatal shot was fired to make his will, disposing of a large estate.

His sons and daughters have over 250 in the list; this stamps Gambetta the greatest sire living or dead. Galton is so well-known as a high-class show horse and a producer of high-class show horses, and high-class high acting sires, that comment is unnecessary. He has made all of his seasons at my stable, nine in all, and served 82 mares last season; this is the very best of proof of a stallion's breeding qualities. The above is a good picture of Galton, just as he stands—no ginger but his natural self. Will stand at $10 to insure a live colt. Mares traded or parted with forfeits insurance and makes season money due. Grass furnished after May 1, at two dollars per month. Reasons why a tin roof, not a sheet iron, is the best roof made:

1st. It will last three times as long as the best shingle and will cost very little more.

2nd. It will conduct lightning as good as any lightning rod, if the gutter is connected to a tile, with down spout.

3rd. There is 50 per cent. less danger of fire and it will reduce the insurance enough to pay the difference between it and a cheap roof.
